

The POLICY PRESS

Social capital and lifelong learning

John Field, Division of Academic Innovation and Continuing Education, University of Stirling

"John Field is a leading international thinker in the lifelong learning field. His new book will contribute to the developing debate on the relevance of social capital to social policy analysis in the UK. Highly recommended." Alan Tuckett, Director, NIACE

SOCIAL CAPITAL
AND LIFELONG LEARNING

John Field

Social capital and lifelong learning are central to current policy concerns both in the UK and internationally. This book confirms the significance of social capital as an analytical tool, while challenging the basis on which current policy is being developed. It:

- offers a wealth of evidence on a topic that has become central to contemporary government;
- provides a detailed empirical investigation of the relationship between social capital, knowledge creation and lifelong learning;
- relates the findings to wider policy debates;

The book is aimed at researchers in education, policy studies and urban studies, as well as those concerned with an understanding of contemporary policy concerns.

Contents: Introduction; Social connections and lifelong learning; Networks, schooling and learning in adult life: interview evidence; Social connections and adult learning: survey evidence; Rethinking the relationship; What next?
